About the World Peace Game:

This experiential learning geopolitical simulation has the potential to fully engage students' minds as well as hearts.

Four countries challenge each other as participants take on different leadership roles across different international organizations including a World Bank, United Nations, World Court, and Arms Dealers.

The object? Achieve world peace and global prosperity by successfully navigating 50 interlocking, multifaceted crises--hurricanes, oil spills, food shortages, political and economic tensions--while on the brink of conflict.

Players must sort through chaos, handle failure, look within themselves, and reach out to others to find a course of action to take. No two games are alike, yet every time, the players' own wisdom, creativity, and compassion emerge and save the planet.
